Abstract	The Citizens Housing & Planning Council (CHPC) was founded in 1937 as a vehicle for creating coalitions of public and private interests aimed at achieving improvements in housing in New York City. Known in its early years as the Citizens Housing Council (CHC), the organization adopted its current name in 1948. The Citizens Housing & Planning Council records consist of approximately 82 cubic feet of working files and reference material accumulated over the decades since the organization's founding. The files include material concerning site-specific projects throughout New York City, as well as topical matters related to the planning, development and maintenance of the urban built environment. Such topics include zoning and re-zoning, urban renewal and slum clearance, racial discrimination and efforts to integrate housing and communities, relocation of residents, rent control, building code enforcement, building rehabilitation, tax incentives, bond referendums, and housing legislation and policies. Documents in the collection include correspondence, site

plans, project proposals, policy analyses and memoranda, photographs, and meeting minutes, as well as extensive print material, such as reports, studies, newsletters, press releases, pamphlets, and brochures. While much of this material was created by CHPC during the course of its policy development and advocacy activities, much was also received from a wide range of other sources involved with housing matters, such as New York state and city officials, legislators, real estate developers and development corporations, local neighborhood and community organizations, other public policy interest groups, and individual academics and housing advocates, among others.

Historical Note

The Citizens Housing and Planning Council of New York (CHPC) was founded in 1937 by Harold S. Buttenheim, editor and publisher of American City, as a vehicle for creating coalitions of public and private interests aimed at achieving improvements in housing in New York City. Known in its early years as the Citizens Housing Council (CHC), the organization adopted its current name in 1948.

In conducting its studies and developing its proposals and position statements, CHPC has relied on a small staff and a Board of Directors comprised of professionals in architecture, finance, law, planning, real estate development, urban studies, and other disciplines related to housing and urban policy. Drawing on these subject matter experts, CHPC has formed "committees" to focus on the many issues associated with housing. Many of these committees were and are longstanding--such as those on public policy, on taxation, and on zoning--while others existed only for a short time to focus on a particular matter.

CHPC has engaged with housing and urban planning issues across a wide front. Its earliest efforts involved the successful advocacy of a state constitutional amendment enabling New York to assist in the financing of public housing. Over the years, CHPC has continued to analyze and take positions on public policy matters, such as the siting of housing authority projects, urban renewal planning, racial and ethnic discrimination, tax exemption and abatement programs, the need for middle income housing, open space, and more. In addition to public policies, CHPC has taken positions on particular projects, such as its opposition to a proposed development in Hunts Point or its support of one in the Mill Basin section of Brooklyn. Among the organization's Executive Directors over the years have been noted housing advocates Ira S. Robbins (1948-1958) and Roger Starr (1958-1973).

CHPC has communicated its positions in a variety of ways. Often this has taken the form of correspondence or analyses sent directly to the relevant public officials. And often the form has been a publication, press release, or other publicly distributed material. To support the work underlying its studies, CHPC took care to maintain a library of print resources, which in large measure remains with the organization. In addition, the working files, subject reference files, and other organizational files accumulated over the decades by CHPC staff were retained in CHPC's archive, both as a historical record of the organization and as an active reference resource. This archive consists of the collection titled "Citizens Housing & Planning Council records" and is described in this finding aid.

Principal source of the above, and for further historical information, see CHPC's self-published The Challenge and the Change (1989).

Scope and Contents note

The collection consists of the records of the Citizens Housing & Planning Council, most of which are the working and subject reference files compiled by the organization since its founding in 1937. The files reflect CHPC's active engagement with public housing and urban planning issues, both as analysts and as advocates. The files include extensive reference material on housing and planning matters; documentation of CHPC's analyses and positions on these matters; and the correspondence, proposed legislation and policies, press releases, publications, and other products resulting from this research and analysis.

A large portion of the collection consists of several hundred site-specific files, including materials on particular projects or other site-specific matters throughout the five boroughs of New York City. Each file most typically includes the New York City Housing Authority's approval request package submitted to the City Planning Commission and Board of Estimate, which holds an overview of the project and map of the subject area. The files also commonly include other documentation about the project, generated by city agencies, the developer, and neighborhood groups and other interested parties, as well as by CHPC. Co-op City, Stuyvesant Town, Cadman Plaza, Lincoln West, and Breezy Point are just a few of the locales with rich documentation.

In addition to site specific documentation, the collection holds much material on other housing and planning topics, such as zoning plans, urban renewal, relocation of residents, rent control, building code enforcement, building rehabilitation, and tax incentives. Racial relations of the mid-twentieth century are well-documented in the collection, particularly in regard to housing discrimination against African-Americans and efforts to integrate projects and communities. CHPC was active in pressing for housing legislation and the files include documentation of CHPC's advocacy initiatives, such as in the extensive records of the Emergency Committee for More Low Rent Housing Files, a 1963-1964 effort to enlist statewide grassroots support for a housing referendum. There are files on particular types of housing, such as cooperatives, single room occupancy (SROs), public housing managed by NYCHA, and Mitchell-Lama developments.

Reports, plans, proposals, correspondence, and other documents from many state and city agencies and their principals, including Robert Moses, are in the collection. Many other perspectives are found in the collection, as the reference files hold documents from elected officials, academics, community organizations, newspapers and other print media, developers, and others. United Housing Foundation and the Citizens Union are just two of the many organizations whose work in the housing field is well-represented in the collection in addition to that of CHPC itself. Many materials are in draft form or are marked as confidential.

Arrangement note

As part of an initiative by CHPC management aimed at improving the public accessibility of its archival and library resources, this collection of CHPC's records was organized and described as a whole in 2012. Prior to that time, the content of the records and their filing structure was unsettled as they remained active reference and working files with material accumulated, used, and arranged as needed to meet CHPC ongoing staff needs. Consequently, the organization of the records outlined below does not reflect an overall original order of the records, but was recommended by a project archivist and approved by CHPC management as a means of imposing useful categories that would enhance access.

The Citizens Housing & Planning Council records are organized in the following seven series:

Series 1: Site-Specific Files

Series 2: Planning and Development Files

Series 3: Housing Public Policy Files

Series 4: Funding Policies and Program Files

Series 5: Emergency Committee for More Low Rent Housing Files

Series 6: William Ginsberg Files

Series 7: CHPC History Files

Detailed arrangement notes

Although there was no overall original order, over time some folders had been arranged thematically in the files; to a significant extent these groupings influenced the imposed organization and were retained in many instances. The arrangement notes at the series and sub-series levels refer more specifically to their relation, if any, to these thematic groups. Further, with very few and minor exception, the documents themselves were not re-arranged during processing. All material found together in a folder was kept together. No material found in separate folders was mixed together, even if the topic or folder label was the same or similar. In short, although folders of material were arranged into an imposed organizational structure, the individual folders and their contents are as originally found in the records.

The folder labels were transcribed by processing archivists from the original folders. Significant additions or changes to the original label made by the archivist are shown in [brackets].

In the original files, material was found in either standalone individual folders or in larger, accordion style packages that contained multiple related folders and/or loose documents. During processing, as noted above, material found in standalone folders was merely transferred to new standalone folders. "Packaged" material was also kept together, with the label from the package exterior used as a unifying label for all related interior folders and documents. In addition, where interior folders had their own unique label, the related documents were kept together in a new folder and both the exterior and unique interior label was transcribed by the processing archivist onto the new folder.

Date ranges were assigned to the series and to the container lists based on the processing archivists' survey of material. Because this survey did not entail a detailed review of all items in the folders, it is possible that earlier or later material might be found in the folders. Researchers should be aware that all dates shown are representative, but may not be exact.

Some oversize material was moved into oversize boxes. These instances are noted in the container list and, when removed from folders of contextual documents, in the folders themselves. Oversize boxes are denoted as OS or, for scrapbooks, SB.

Some items were set aside from the rest of the collection by CHPC for internal purposes. These are noted in the container list as being in boxes with a designation of "SC." These items are merely stored separately, and are open to researchers on the same basis as other material.

Conditions Governing Access note

Access to the collection is by confirmed appointment only.

Conditions Governing Use note

Permission to work with the collection or obtaining reproductions of the documents does not constitute permission to publish or otherwise use the material, including on websites or in other electronic form. Researchers are responsible for identifying the need for any permission under copyright or other applicable law and for obtaining permission from the holder of the rights. For material in which CHPC holds the copyright, permission to use the material must be requested in writing; if granted, permission will be made in writing.

Accruals note

The collection is open-ended and will continue to receive additional records of the organization.

Processing Information note

A CHPC management initiative resulted in the records being organized and described as a whole for the first time in May-June 2012. The arrangement of the records was recommended by Consulting Archivist Larry Weimer based on his survey of the files, and was accepted with some modification by Executive Director Jerilyn Perrine and Research Analyst/Librarian Sarah Watson. Weimer, whose work was funded by a grant from the New York State Documentary Heritage Program, produced the catalog entry for the state's Historic Documents Inventory (HDI). Weimer also produced the collection's initial finding aid at the end of June 2012, which included description to the folder level. Processing of the collection, which included re-housing of the material and refinement of the initial description and container lists, began in late May 2012 by interns Katherine Jones and Megan Margino and was completed in early July.

Related Materials

Related Archival Materials note

In addition to its archives, CHPC holds in its Library thousands of items of print material from the 1800s forward. These items include commercially-published books; publications of Federal, state, and city government departments and agencies; publications of authorities and other quasi-government entities; U.S. Congressional committee and sub-committee reports; national and local serials, such as magazines, journals, and newsletters; corporate proposals, surveys, and the like; and pamphlets, maps and atlases.

Series 1. Site-Specific Files

Collection InventorySeries 1. Site-Specific Files 1930-2006, 25.52 Cubic feet*Arrangement note

The series is organized in five sub-series, by borough:

Sub-series 1.1: Bronx

Sub-series 1.2: Brooklyn

Sub-series 1.3: Manhattan

Sub-series 1.4: Queens

Sub-series 1.5: Staten Island and Multiple Boroughs (includes material that refers to projects in more than one borough)

The series combines the approximately 300 project folders organized alphabetically by borough and project in the original files with other site-specific folders found under other topical headings, particularly "urban renewal" and "planning." These topical headings were recorded in the folder label during processing. Various other site-specific files found in the original files with no other particular context are also included in this sub-series.

Scope and Contents note

This series includes those working files concerned with development efforts aimed at specific housing projects or neighborhood renewal/redevelopment initiatives. Projects included here range across various programs, including urban renewal, veterans housing, senior citizen housing, Mitchell-Lama, and so forth. The unifying feature of the series is that the material tends to focus on particular projects (e.g. Cadman Plaza, Lincoln Center) or well-defined targeted areas (e.g., Cooper Square, Coney Island, Breezy Point). The series also includes a small number of folders of neighborhood-oriented material (e.g., newspaper clipping files, multiple project files) that covers various projects.

Generally, this series includes those files with labels referring to a specific project/area. An exception to this were files explicitly labeled topically as "zoning" that referred to particular areas of the city; those files are found in series 2 (Planning and Development Files). Materials on particular places and projects can also be found in the later, topical series, though without the focus found here. For example, the sub-series centered on Mitchell-Lama housing, though tending to be concerned with that housing more as a policy matter, does include some material on specific Mitchell-Lama projects.

Each file most typically includes the NYC Housing Authority's (NYCHA) approval request package submitted to the City Planning Commission and Board of Estimate. These packages include an overview of the project and map of the subject area. The files also commonly include fact sheets from the NYCHA; pages from the published hearing of the Board of Estimate; press releases from city agencies, especially the Housing and Redevelopment Board; press kits; and announcements of the City Planning Commission's approval. The files also often include CHPC's notes, analyses, positions, site inspection reports, and correspondence on the project. Some files include copies of the developer or sponsor's application, as well as site maps, architectural drawings, sales brochures, and photographs of the site or the architect's models. Some of the files include correspondence, position papers, analyses and other such documents from neighborhood groups or other interested parties. Many files also include newspaper clippings and other reference matter.

Manhattan is especially well-represented in the series, but all the boroughs have a sizable amount of material, and many projects in each borough have rich documentation. These are highlighted in the sub-series descriptions.

Sub-series 1.1: Bronx 1930-1999, 3.25 Cubic feetArrangement note

Sub-series 1.1: Bronx

The sub-series is arranged alphabetically by project or other specific site reference. Folders containing material on multiple Bronx projects or neighborhoods are found at the end of the sub-series.

Note on folder labels:

During processing, the labels from the original folders were transcribed to the new folders. Many, though not all, of the original folders had codes indicating the source of financing for the project. These codes were recorded and are as follows: F=Federal; S=State; C=City; ML=Mitchell-Lama.

Many of the projects were known by more than one name during their development, but the original labels typically referred to only one (often the latest) of these. When this was recognized during processing, the alternative name was included in [brackets] in the label; most typically, the bracketed name was the one presented to the City Planning Commission for approval.

Folder level date ranges were derived by the processing archivist based on a survey of folder content, not necessarily an item level review. Accordingly, while the date ranges are expected to be accurate in most instances, the researcher should be aware that folders might hold earlier or later dated documents.

Scope and Contents note

The sub-series includes those files concerning specific projects or other site-specific matters in the Bronx. While most project files are fairly lean, consisting often only of the NYCHA submission and some related documents, several files are particularly rich. These include projects concerning Charlotte Street, Co-op City, Hunts Point, Faraday Wood, Melrose Commons, and Soundview projects.

Processing Information note

The sub-series was processed in June 2012 by Megan Margino.

Sub-series 1.2: Brooklyn 1930-2006, 4.38 Cubic feet

Arrangement note

Sub-series 1.2: Brooklyn

The sub-series is arranged alphabetically by project or other specific site reference. Folders containing material on multiple Brooklyn projects or neighborhoods are found at the end of the sub-series.

Note on folder labels:

During processing, the labels from the original folders were transcribed to the new folders. Many, though not all, of the original folders had codes indicating the source of financing for the project. These codes were recorded and are as follows: F=Federal; S=State; C=City; ML=Mitchell-Lama.

Many of the projects were known by more than one name during their development, but the original labels typically referred to only one (often the latest) of these. When this was recognized during processing, the alternative name was included in [brackets] in the label; most typically, the bracketed name was the one presented to the City Planning Commission for approval.

Folder level date ranges were derived by the processing archivist based on a survey of folder content, not necessarily an item level review. Accordingly, while the date ranges are expected to be accurate in most instances, the researcher should be aware that folders might hold earlier or later dated documents.

Scope and Contents note

The sub-series includes those files concerning specific projects or other site-specific matters in Brooklyn.

Many files are quite extensive and/or hold rich material. These include projects concerning the Atlantic Terminal area, Brooklyn Army Terminal, Brooklyn Bridge Southwest, Cadman Plaza, various Coney Island projects, Fort Greene - Navy Yard Housing, Harbour Village, Lindsay Park, Linear City, Paerdegat Basin, Starrett City, and the Warbasse Houses, among others.

The Downtown Brooklyn file includes some material on the consideration of a new stadium for the Dodgers. The Northside (S&S Corrugated Paper Machinery Co) file concerns an effort by a manufacturer to expand, resulting in conflict with neighboring residences facing condemnation. The Coney Island file includes material concerning the court order to desegregate Mark Twain Junior High School (Hart et al. v. Community School Board, et al.). The Williamsburg - Los Sures file concerns the Southside United Housing Development Fund Corp study project for moderate rehabilitation in Southside Williamsburg.

Sub-series 1.3: Manhattan

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes those files concerning specific projects or other site-specific matters in Manhattan.

Many files are quite extensive and/or hold rich material. These include projects concerning Bellevue, the Cathedral Parkway, Harlem, the Lower Manhattan Expressway, the Manhattan Civic Center, Manhattan Plaza, Pedestrian Malls, Riverside Amsterdam, Ruppert Brewery, Seward Park and its Extension, South Houston, South Street Seaport, Washington Square, the Washington Street Market Area, and the West Village. Subjects that contained a large amount of information include Cooper Square, Lincoln Square, Lincoln West (including seven sets of architectural plans), Roosevelt Island, Stuyvesant Town, Washington Square Southeast, Westbeth, and Westway.

Interesting findings throughout the Manhattan sub-series include: individual block assessments and diagrams in the Chelsea Area file; identically named Mary K. Simkovitch projects in lower Manhattan in the Gouverneur Gardens file; descriptions of the "dollar" sales and vacant building programs in the Harlem files; the overwhelming presence of architects in the Manhattan Civic Center file; and extensive materials concerning the West Side Highway Project and concerns of air quality standards in the Westway file. Additionally, the Stuyvesant Town folder is associated with multiple court cases regarding the constitutionality of its segregated housing.

Processing Information note

The sub-series was processed in June 2012 by Katherine Jones and Megan Margino.

Arrangement note

Sub-series 1.4: Queens

The sub-series is arranged alphabetically by project or other specific site reference. Folders containing material on multiple Queens projects or neighborhoods are found at the end of the sub-series.

Note on folder labels:

During processing, the labels from the original folders were transcribed to the new folders. Many, though not all, of the original folders had codes indicating the source of financing for the project. These codes were recorded and are as follows: F=Federal; S=State; C=City; ML=Mitchell-Lama.

Many of the projects were known by more than one name during their development, but the original labels typically referred to only one (often the latest) of these. When this was recognized during processing, the alternative name was included in [brackets] in the label; most typically, the bracketed name was the one presented to the City Planning Commission for approval.

Folder level date ranges were derived by the processing archivist based on a survey of folder content, not necessarily an item level review. Accordingly, while the date ranges are expected to be accurate in most instances, the researcher should be aware that folders might hold earlier or later dated documents.

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes those files concerning specific projects or other site-specific matters in Queens.

Extensive files in this sub-series consist of Arverne (Rockaway), Breezy Point, Forest Hills, and Hunters Point. Specifically, the Breezy Point category is comprised of nine separate files including photos, maps, and a reel-to-reel tape of television interviews. Other notable findings in the Queens sub-series include: resident data in the 71 Ave – 161 St. file, photos within the Arverne (Rockaway) file, large site plans in the Big Six Towers file, and information regarding controversy between public and private land in the Neponsit – Riis Park file.

Arrangement note

Sub-series 1.5: Staten Island and Multiple Boroughs

The sub-series is arranged alphabetically by project or other specific site reference. Folders containing material on multiple Staten Island projects or neighborhoods follow the site-specific folders. The sub-series closes with folders that include site-specific material from multiple New York City boroughs.

Note on folder labels:

During processing, the labels from the original folders were transcribed to the new folders. Many, though not all, of the original folders had codes indicating the source of financing for the project. These codes were recorded and are as follows: F=Federal; S=State; C=City; ML=Mitchell-Lama.

Many of the projects were known by more than one name during their development, but the original labels typically referred to only one (often the latest) of these. When this was recognized during processing, the alternative name was included in [brackets] in the label; most typically, the bracketed name was the one presented to the City Planning Commission for approval.

Folder level date ranges were derived by the processing archivist based on a survey of folder content, not necessarily an item level review. Accordingly, while the date ranges are expected to be accurate in most instances, the researcher should be aware that folders might hold earlier or later dated documents.

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes those files concerning specific projects or other site-specific matters in Staten Island.

Extensive files in this sub-series consist of South Richmond, NYCHA Rehab Projects, Industrial Parks, and Parking Garages. Notable findings in the Staten Island sub-series include State of NY Senate booklets regarding the Development Corporation Act and analyses in the South Richmond file, an analysis of the Staten Island housing market in the Staten Island Development file, and a Housing Authority project data booklet in the NYCHA Rehab Projects file. A blueprint of the NYCHA's plans for existing projects of 1934 is also included in this sub-series.

Series 2: Planning and Development Files 1930-2005, 14.81 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

This series includes those CHPC working files and reference materials concerned with regional, metropolitan, city, borough, and community planning and development as a general matter of legislation and/or public policy. Materials on planning that emphasize particular sites are found for the most part in Series 1 (Site-Specific Files); nonetheless, material in this series does often refer to particular sites. The zoning sub-series especially includes zoning proposals for city areas, mostly in Manhattan.

Arrangement note

The series is organized in 5 sub-series:

Sub-series 1: Planning

Sub-series 2: Zoning

Sub-series 3: Urban Renewal and Development

Sub-series 4: Landmarking

Sub-series 5: Environment

Processing Information note

Sub-series 2.1: Planning

The series was processed in June 2012 by Katherine Jones.

Sub-series 2.1: Planning 1930-2005, 5.88 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material concerning general planning topics or policies (such as fair share siting of city facilities, single room occupancy (SRO) housing, industrial development, parks, and parking), Planning Commission administrative matters, neighborhood conservation, and community district planning. There are reference resources about planning and a small number of folders with statistical or demographic information, including a 1933 survey by the Tenement House Department of vacancies in Class A multiple dwellings. Specific neighborhoods or other sections of the city are sometimes referenced in the material, but generally the material in this sub-series does not center on specific sites.

CHPC's engagement with planning is evident throughout the sub-series, but particularly so in those folders that relate to the City Planning Commission and to community districts and preservation. In addition to CHPC committee minutes and other documents, the folders include correspondence, government agency/department published matter, studies, proposals, press releases, and other material.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough topical order. General reference and statistical materials are toward the end of the sub-series.

The sub-series brings together various folders found throughout the original files that were either labeled "Planning" or had content clearly referring to some aspect of planning. A few files labeled as Planning were site-specific and were placed in that series.

Sub-series 2.2: Zoning

General note

includes material from the Planning Commission-Master Plan folder.

Sub-series 2.2: Zoning 1932-2004, 5.36 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material concerning zoning policies, zoning issues or zoning plans. There are several files on zoning proposals for specific areas of the city; Manhattan areas are particularly well-represented, including early (1944) material concerning Greenwich Village. The files hold CHPC analyses, committee work, statements, and other material documenting CHPC's engagement with zoning matters. There is much reference material, especially City Planning Commission documents.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological and topical order. The bulk of this sub-series consists of the files labeled Zoning found together in the original files. A small number of folders found elsewhere were included. Neighborhood-specific zoning files found with the original Zoning files remained with this sub-series, rather than being moved to the Site-Specific Files series.

Sub-series 2.3: Urban Renewal and Development 1939-2001, 2.49 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material concerning urban renewal and development (often referred to here as slum clearance) legislation, policies, and programs generally, especially with respect to urban development corporations and agencies, enterprise zones, and the like. The files hold CHPC analyses, committee work, statements, and other material documenting the organization's engagement with development matters. There is much reference material from and about the various entities formed to support development work.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological and topical order. The sub-series combines various small sets of folders (e.g., non-site specific Urban Renewal folders, Urban Development Corp folders, and UDAG folders) found in the original files. Miscellaneous folders on development topics were included.

the theater district

Sub-series 2.5: Environment 1961-2002, 0.65 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material concerning environmental legislation, regulations and policy at the federal and city level. The series holds mostly reference material from the NYC Department of Sanitation and other agencies and academics concerned with environmental matters. There is some material reflecting CHPC positions and research concerning the connection between land use, housing and environmental matters.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological order. There is no relation to an original order in the files as the sub-series brings together miscellaneous folders on the topic.

Series 3: Housing Public Policy Files 1920-2010, 20.29 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

This series includes those files concerned with housing legislation, regulations, policies, and programs. The focus of this series is on types of housing, housing stock, target residents, construction, building rehabilitation, and building codes and enforcement. The financial or funding aspects of housing policy are emphasized in Series 4. Many of the folders include material on specific projects or sites, but the bulk of the material is more topical than site-specific. The files include CHPC's analyses, committee deliberations, correspondence, public statements, and other material reflecting the organization's longstanding engagement with these matters. In addition, the files include correspondence, print material, and other documents from other local organizations, city agencies and officials, and city, state and federal elected officials, among others.

Arrangement note

The series is organized in 9 sub-series:

Sub-series 1: Housing General

Sub-series 2: Middle Income & Mitchell-Lama

Sub-series 3: Rehabilitation

Sub-series 4: Racial & Ethnic Matters

Sub-series 5: Relocation

Sub-series 8: New York City Housing Authority Files

Sub-series 9: Miscellaneous Housing Subjects

Sub-series 3.1: Housing General 1920-1998, 3.58 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes CHPC analyses and position statements on housing legislation, programs, needs, and problems; advocacy and public awareness initiatives concerning housing at the legislative, gubernatorial and state constitutional levels; political position statements; and other material concerning public housing generally. The sub-series includes copies of New York State housing and development bills of the 1920s-1940s.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological order. The sub-series compiles various folders found in the original files.

Sub-series 3.4: Racial and Ethnic Matters 1932-2010, 2.39 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

The sub-series includes material on racial and ethnic neighborhood demographics, housing discrimination and anti-discrimination efforts. Most of the material seems oriented to African-Americans, but the Puerto Rican/Hispanic population is also significant in the sub-series. The sub-series is rich in material reflecting efforts to integrate housing projects and communities, as well as to improve inter-racial relationships more generally at the state, city, and local level. In addition to correspondence, meeting notes, and the like, there are many publications concerning race relations, particularly with respect to housing. (See the Manhattan site specific files for Stuyvesant Town matters.)

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological order. The bulk of the sub-series consists of folders categorized as Discrimination in the original files. Miscellaneous folders on racial/ethnic matters were added.

Sub-series 3.6: Rent Control 1940-1997, 2.39 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material, especially reference print matter, concerning rent control regulations. Many files are extensive, and most contain housing statistics and reports by the NYS Urban Development Corporation, CHPC, and other housing organizations. Additional matter includes pamphlets, brochures, press releases, publications, and news clippings. Also included is information regarding the history of rent control, rent control recommendations, and rent control legislation and its effects on landlords and tenants. Surveys of proposed changes, court briefings, and summaries of public hearings can also be found in this sub-series.

Sub-series 3.6: Rent Control

Extensive files include Rent Control 1950-1960, Rent Control 1950, 1966-1968, and Rent Control 1969-1970. Interesting findings include "Rent Control: A Graphic Representation" found in the Rent Control 1940-1949 file, a State of NY Senate "Act to Amend the Emergency Rent Control Law" in the Rent Control 1950-1960 file, "Rent and Eviction Regulations" in the Rent Control 1960-1964 file, and a "Rent Control Program Summary" including charts and tables in the Rent Control 1950, 1966-1968 file.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological order. The bulk of the material were in folders labeled Rent Control in the original files.

MCI [Major Capital Improvement clippings] 1990-1995 114 4

Sub-series 3.7: Dwelling Codes 1928-2000, 2.17 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material on the multiple dwelling law, other building/dwelling codes, proposed revisions to the laws, and the enforcement of such laws and regulations. Much of the material dates from the 1940s through the 1960s, reflecting CHPC's engagement with the issue of obtaining better housing through the enforcement of codes.

Extensive files include: Codes: Law Enforcement to 1953, Codes: Law Enforcement 1954-60's, and Codes: Multiple Dwelling Code. Notable findings include CHPC's involvement in helping pass a new Receivership Law in the Prior Lien Law file, publications by the Welfare Council of NY and the Tenement House Committee in the Codes: Miscellaneous Materials file, and CHPC's "Qualitative Evaluation of Programs" in the Codes: Multiple Dwelling Code file. This sub-series also contains numerous special collections material.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough chronological order. The bulk of the material was labeled Codes in the original files, and was combined with similar material found in the files.

Series 5: Emergency Committee for More Low Rent Housing Files

Series 5: Emergency Committee for More Low Rent Housing Files 1963-1964, 0.87 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This series includes the records of the Emergency Committee for More Low Rent Housing. This committee was a CHPC initiative "formed to mobilize citizen support for housing programs which will provide decent, safe and sanitary housing for low-income families." (Source: Speakers' Kit) This effort focused on convincing the state legislature to place a bond referendum on the 1964 ballot, and then advocating for its passage. The series includes correspondence to and from the committee, lists of statewide individuals and organizations participating on the committee, minutes of the sub-committees (Design; Income Limitations and Continued Occupancy; Finance), brochures, press releases, campaign materials, and more.

Arrangement note

The materials are in the original order. There appears to be two, somewhat overlapping sets of documents. One set is foldered by topic. A second set, mostly of carbon copies, is foldered chronologically.

Processing Information note

The series was processed in June 2012 by Katherine Jones.

Series 6: William Ginsberg Files 1971-2006, 0.87 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This series includes about 14 folders maintained by CHPC Board member William Ginsberg. There are materials concerning CHPC governance, including the corporate restructuring of CHPC (2004-2006) and minutes of the Board. There are copies of the Committee on Public Policy Bulletins, and various other CHPC publications. There is a working draft of "Communities in Context," an urban design case study developed by CHPC (2002). There are also working files concerning matters considered by CHPC's Landmarks Committee.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in rough topical order.

Processing Information note

The series was processed in June 2012 by Katherine Jones.

Series 6: William Ginsberg Files

Series 7: CHPC History Files

Series 7: CHPC History Files 1933-2008, 12.5 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

The series includes materials other than CHPC's working and subject reference files that reflect the history of the organization. The series includes CHPC-produced publications and other publicly-distributed print documents, internal notes and other documents describing CHPC's history and programs, materials related to the organization's governance and management, and scrapbooks and photographs. (The description of the series and sub-series consistently uses the CHPC acronym even for pre-1948 material when the organization's name was Citizens Housing Council (CHC).

Arrangement note

The series is arranged in 5 sub-series.

Sub-series 1: Publications

Sub-series 2: Press Releases

Sub-series 3: Organizational Matters

Sub-series 4: Scrapbooks

Sub-series 5: Photographs

Sub-series 7.1: Publications 1938-2008, 5.0 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

The sub-series includes publications produced by CHPC. A substantial part of the sub-series consists of those publications listed at the back of CHPC's self-published history, The Challenge and the Change (1989), though there are publications here that were not included on that list, especially post-1989 items, and some items from that list are not in the series. The publications include single item books or booklets and serial publications, such as policy newsletters and bulletins. There were a variety of these serials over CHPC's history, some published regularly and numbered in volumes, and others published on a less regular basis. It does not appear that the holdings of the serials in this sub-series are complete in all instances. Some numbers of the serials might be found in the working files.

The sub-series also includes materials of a more ephemeral nature, such as membership solicitation forms, invitations to CHPC-sponsored events and contests, and other print material distributed publicly. The sub-series includes some printed annual reports and internal documents concerning the history of the organization, its programs, scope of action, proposed activities, and the like which were filed with the ephemera. Finally, the sub-series includes materials from management seminars sponsored by CHPC.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged first by format, then in chronological order within format.

Processing Information note

The sub-series was processed in June 2012 by Katherine Jones.

Scope and Contents note

Sub-series 7.3: Organizational Matters

The sub-series includes press releases and other public statements issued by CHPC from its founding in 1937 until the early 1980s. A small amount of correspondence is found filed with the releases. Aside from a few 1989 releases, the sub-series holds no post-1981 press releases. These later releases might be found in the various topical files.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged in chronological order.

Sub-series 7.3: Organizational Matters 1936-1999, 2.7 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This sub-series includes material concerning CHPC governance and internal matters. The key content of the sub-series are minutes of the Board of Directors and of the Executive Committee. It also includes correspondence between CHC/CHPC and the Fred J. Lavanburg Foundation over several decades; although this correspondence was conducted primarily for the purpose of fundraising, the material provides an overview of CHPC's activities over time.

Arrangement note

The folders are arranged by type of material.

Sub-series 7.4: Scrapbooks circa 1933-1990s, 3.7 Cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The sub-series includes scrapbooks of, mostly, clippings collected by CHPC concerning housing and/or the CHPC. One scrapbook, with clippings from 1933-1937, pre-dates CHPC. Some clippings, especially from the 1980s to 1990s, are loose or disbound. Other materials are still in the scrapbooks, but are in fragile condition. Although the bulk of the material are newspaper clippings, two scrapbooks from the first half of the 1940s include documents other than clippings, including correspondence, invitations, and other ephemera. The 1945 scrapbook holds rich information about the 1945 housing referendum, including a photograph of Eleanor Roosevelt visiting a tenement on Manhattan's East Side in support.

Arrangement note

The scrapbooks are boxed by size.

Sub-series 7.5: Photographs circa 1930s-1990s, 0.2 Cubic feetScope and Contents note

The sub-series includes photographs concerning housing and CHPC activities, such as annual meeting and luncheons. Many of the prints of images found in CHPC's 1989 history The Challenge and the Change are here. There are photos from the archives of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, presumably of Stuyvesant Town. There are photos of 1930s building conditions, an early building inspector, Robert Moses in the operator's seat of a tractor, and other historic images. There are contact sheets of CHPC events and other small albums of photos. There are a few negatives and one set of slides.

Arrangement note

There is one box of photos, in no particular order. Photographs found in the working files with particular topics were left with those files; these can mostly be found in the Site-Specific series.
